

1.16	Disc may hit player in the face	Low	Low	This is primarily of concern for beginners who are perhaps most likely to mis-read a throw and consequently collide with the disc. Beginners spend time on "frisbee fluency" games to increase their understanding of flight paths and give them techniques for catching/blocking discs at that height. Encourage groups to warn other players if they think a disc will hit them (by shouting "heads"), and for those players to duck and protect their faces.
